Support Scientist
Validation and Improvement of the GOES-R
Rainfall Rate Algorithm
NOAA/NESDIS/STAR
College Park, MD

I.M. Systems Group, Inc. (IMSG) (www.imsg.com), a science and technical company supporting U.S. Federal Government, located in Rockville, Maryland is currently seeking to hire a Support Scientist to join our team efforts to support NOAA/NESDIS/Center for Satellite Applications Research (STAR). IMSG supports STAR in applied science research and development efforts in a semi-research and semi-operational working environment along with U.S. government scientists, visiting scientists, and other contractors. This task is to support the validation of the completed Rainfall Rate algorithm by developing and using tools for evaluating the performance of the algorithm and tracing that performance back to the algorithm structure.

General Requirements/Duties:

This is a short term temporary position providing support to convert the FORTRAN 77 rainfall validation tools developed at STAR to FORTRAN 90 with subsequent testing and clean-up. The initial term will end on 9/17/2015.

Qualifications:

- College degree in related science field
- Demonstrated coding experience, esp. FORTRAN90
- Knowledge and experience with satellite data processing
- Willing to learn and quick learner
- Sound communication skills and works well with other scientists

To Apply:

Please submit your resume, the contact information for three (3) references, and a cover letter explaining how your qualifications meet the requirements of the position to jobs@imsg.com with the following subject line: NOA1518 Rainfall Rate Support Scientist. Your application will not be considered unless it is sent to the above mentioned email. Please include information regarding your current U.S. citizenship or current visa status.

IMSG offers an outstanding benefits package including company paid medical benefits and three weeks paid time off. Please indicate your timeline of availability and preferred salary level for consideration.

IMSG is an Equal Opportunity Employer and Veteran friendly.