ANALYTICAL CHEMISTRY FACULTY POSITION

The University of Georgia Department of Chemistry invites applications for a tenure track faculty position in Analytical chemistry, commencing August 1, 2017, at the level of Assistant Professor. All areas of analytical chemistry will be considered, particularly those with research interests that complement existing strengths in bioanalytical, materials, and environmental chemistry. The Department of Chemistry provides an excellent environment for multidisciplinary research. Competitive applicants will have a strong research record, demonstrate creativity in their research plans, and exhibit a commitment to teaching at the graduate and undergraduate levels. A Ph.D. in chemistry or related field and at least one year of postdoctoral experience are required. Candidates should submit a cover letter of interest that addresses how credentials and experience meet the responsibilities and qualifications of the position, curriculum vitae, concise statements of research and teaching plans (no longer than 8 pages total), and arrange for at least three letters of recommendation to be submitted. The application materials must be submitted electronically (<http://facultyjobs.uga.edu/postings/1355>); applications submitted any other way will not be considered. Review of applications will begin on December 1 and continue until the position has been filled. The Franklin College of Arts and Sciences, its many units, and the University of Georgia are committed to increasing the diversity of its faculty and students, and sustaining a work and learning environment that is inclusive. The University is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action employer. All qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to race, color, religion, sex, national origin, disability, gender identity, sexual orientation or protected veteran status.
