

Lafayette College
Visiting Assistant Professor of Climate Change and Oceanography

The Department of Geology and Environmental Geosciences and the Environmental Programs at Lafayette College invite applications for a full-time sabbatical leave replacement for academic year 2020-2021 from candidates with expertise in oceanography and paleoclimatology. The successful applicant will teach a 3-3 load including an introductory-level course on climate change through Earth's history, two intermediate-level environmental science/studies courses (one exploring the issue of anthropogenic climate change and one elective in the candidate's area of expertise), an intermediate-level oceanography (with laboratory) course, and introductory-level geology laboratories. Preference will be given to candidates with a PhD and teaching experience; however, we will consider well-qualified ABD applicants.

The review process will begin immediately and continue until the position is filled. For full consideration, please submit application materials by March 9th, 2020. Candidates should submit a letter of application, statements of teaching and research interests, vita, college and graduate school transcripts, and three letters of reference via the interfolio interface: <http://apply.interfolio.com/72940>. In your cover letter, please address how your scholarship, teaching, mentoring, and/or community service might support Lafayette College's commitment to diversity and inclusion as articulated in the College's diversity statement available online (<https://about.lafayette.edu/diversity-statement/>). Please direct any questions to search committee chair, Professor Kira Lawrence, lawrenck@lafayette.edu.

Lafayette College is committed to creating a diverse community: one that is inclusive and responsive, and is supportive of each and all of its faculty, students, and staff. All members of the College community share a responsibility for creating, maintaining, and developing a learning environment in which difference is valued, equity is sought, and inclusiveness is practiced. Lafayette College is an equal opportunity employer and encourages applications from women and minorities.
