

Top Five Presentation Strategies for ESL Speakers

CommSci ESL Brown Bag Seminar

Thursday, April 22, 2010, 11:30 a.m.–1:00 p.m., FL2-1001
(Bring own lunch/refreshments)

Dr. Antonia Johnson
Clear Talk Communication
(<http://www.cleartalkcommnication.com>)

Out of 50 good things you could change about your English speech and presentation strategies to make them effective and not frustrating for your listeners, which ones are the most important for ESL speakers? Dr. Antonia L. Johnson's workshop will teach you top presentation strategies of the most successful ESL speakers. She will explain what makes English speech sounds uniquely difficult and three key techniques to mastery. She will explain why the critical skills for presentations are what you need in meetings. She will use guided practice during the workshops for accurate pronunciation of 9 of the most difficult consonants and 8 of most difficult vowels. She will also answer two questions that technical professionals often ask: 1) Of all the dozens of things you can do to make a good (or great!) presentation, what are the most important? 2) Of all the things you can do with your body, what is the most effective body language for presentations?

We encourage you to register in the Staff Development Catalog via Connect: <https://www.fin.ucar.edu/hrisConnect/employee>, but walk-ins are welcome if you run out of time to register. Log in using your UCAS (time card log in/password). Click Training & Education tab on top of page, click Staff Development Catalog, search for “Top Five Presentation Strategies for ESL Speakers”, click details, scroll up, and enroll. For more information on the registration, contact Cheryl Cristanelli, x8708, cherylc@ucar.edu.