Climate Change Specialist Opportunity

Sustainability International is seeking a post doctorate individual who has credentials in climate change. Sustainability International is submitting a prospectus to be a consultant to a Middle East country for an extended period of time (5+years). The individual initially will work with Sustainability International to develop the final proposal and to fulfill the role as a climate change specialist.

The individual will be responsible for assessing regional impacts of climate change on some major floristic groups and ecosystem dynamics in terms of biodiversity conservation. He/she will be primarily responsible for supervising development of a project based climate change unit and the recruitment of a national climate specialist.

Interested individuals should contact Sustainability International before September 23, 2008:
